

A scatter plot showing 40 data points (circles) distributed across a 10x10 grid. The points are scattered throughout the grid, with a higher density in the center and fewer points near the edges. The grid lines are light gray, and the points are black circles with white centers. The distribution appears to be roughly uniform but with some local clustering, particularly in the central region of the plot.